

ENGAGE LIVERPOOL PRESENTS:

BOUNDARIES

Join us for a conversation about real and invisible boundaries – as you see them...

Boundaries can be both physical, like the a road that cuts the city off from its waterfront, or invisible – arbitrary lines on a map that cut districts, cities, regions and countries up, separating one area from another.

But who sets these boundaries and who decides when they change? Do the invisible boundaries matter as much as the physical boundaries?

What do they mean for our heritage? Who decides what falls inside our World Heritage Site? Can it change? Are things that lie beyond it less important?

When we think about the cities in which we live, what boundaries are important to us?

Sign up on Eventbrite and join us:

22 May, 5:30-8pm

One Fine Day, Old Hall Street, Liverpool